REVOLUTION IN HAYTI

General Continues to Gather Many Followers

SOLDIERS IN UPROAR

General Panic in Business Circles and Several Large Houses May be Compelled to Suspend,

THE ARRIVAL OF JIMINEZ'S MEN

CAPE HAYTIEN, May 11.—While the rumors that a revolution has broken out in Hayti are false, there is general discontent in the republic and a revolution is momentarily looked for General Albert Salnave, notwithstanding the warning given him by the Dominican government, has not withdrawn, and continues to gather many followers on the frontier where the Haytian government has ordered a heavy concentration of forces. Many partisans of General Antenor Firmin, the head of the last revolution, who is now in Paris, have crossed the frontier and combined their forces with those of Salnave.

A violent tumult among the soldiers at Port Au Prince resulted in a general panic and the rumors was then circulated that a revolution had begun.

President Nord has decided to resist energetically any movement looking to a revolution and strong measures have been taken to this end.

There is a panic in general business circles and several large houses are likely to suspend. Silver has become very scarce and has resulted in a 75 per cent. premium over paper money.

The premium on gold is 420 per cent.

A dispatch from Cape Haytien, April 27 said that General Salnave, a Haytian refuge, had been warned to leave Dominican territory immediately. Under the auspices of General Jiminez, former president of Santo Domingo, it was asserted General Salnave was preparing an expedition, the object of which was the overthrown of the Haytian government. Several detachments of Haytian troops were sent to the frontier to check any movement on the part of Salnave. The same despatch conveyed a report that an agreement had been entered into by the Haytian exiles in the Dominican republic and on the Island of St. Thomas to make a joint effort to re-enter Hayti and that trouble was imminent. People in Hayti, the despatch said, were talking of the return to the republic of Generals Salnave, Foushard and Lecomte, all former candidates for the presidency of the Haytian republic.

CAPE HAYTIEN, May 10.—The Cape Haytian government openly accords protection to the Dominican government in order to assure the triumph of President Morales, as the arrival of Jiminez's followers in force would be fatal to Morales.

According to news from a reliable source, the Haytian authorities have just authorized a Dominican cruiser to disembark a strong contingent of troops on Haytien territory for the investment of Monte Christi, this being made necessary by the fruitlessness of the many bombardments by the gunboat Presidente.

LOCK HAVEN DEFEATS B. A. C.

Wrests Victory From Bellefonters After Hard Struggle.

The Glass Works meadow was the scene of a most exciting and enthusiastic base ball game on Saturday. The Lock Haven State Normal crossed bats with the Bellefonte Athletic team and in a fierce struggle won the game in the twelfth inning.

The Lock Haven boys made a run in the first inning and in the forth our boys put six down to their credit, neither team scored the fifth, but in the sixth and seventh, the "Havenites" made seven runs and in the ninth inning the B. A. C. scored two making the score even. The tenth and eleventh was a cipher for both and in the twelth the Normal boys made another run giving them the game to a score of 8 to 9.

WILLIAM P. DUNCAN.

His Death a Great Shock to His Many Friends.

With an unusual degree of sorrow we are compelled to note the death of one of Centre County's leading citizens, William P. Duncan, Esq., President of the First National Bank, of Philipsburg, which occurred Tuesday evening May 3rd at 7 o'clock in the city of Baltimore. During the winter, it will be remembered, Mr. Duncan was taken ill with an attack of grip, developing into pneumonia and heart trouble, and for some time his condition was most serious, and little hope of his recovery was entertained. He rallied, however, and was getting along so nicely that, with his wife, he left Philipsburg about three weeks ago with a view of spending some time in Washington and Baltimore in the hope of still gaining additional strength. His many friends here were pleased to have favorable reports from him, and when the news reached here of his death they were naturally very greatly shocked. His death is said to be directly the result of apoplexy. He suffered a very severe relapse on Saturday evening, and from that time until his death is said to have remained in an unconscious condition.

The deceased was born at Lewistown in 1838. His father was O. P. Duncan, who was a native of Aaronsburg, and his mother was formerly Susan Potter, of Potter's Mills, both families being prominent in the annals of the county He was for many years a resident of Bellefonte prior to going to Philipsburg, and was in the foundry business here under the name of William P. Duncan & Co.

Mr. Duncan went to Philipsburg in 1877 and assumed charge of the milling business of Duncan, Hale & Co. He afterwards became president of the Mohannon Banking Co., which in after years became the First National Bank, of which he was president at the time of his death. He was also owner of the Sandy Ridge Fire Brick Works, and connected with the Steam Heating Co., Philipsburg Water Works and other interests in this vicinity. For several years he had been associated with the late Governor D. H. Hastings in extensive coal operations in Cambria county. He was always interested in the general welfare of Philipsburg, and gave his influence and means in promoting its best good.

He was an honest, upright, shrewd business men, affable and courteous, and had a large circle of friends who will very deeply mourn his death. He is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Lena Derringer, of Philadelphia, and two daughters, Misses Mildred and Natalie. Four sisters also survive, viz: Mrs. M. S. Mitchell, Mrs. Geo. F. Foot, Mrs. D. A. Irvin and Mrs. M. B. Tesson, all residing in Washington, D. C.

The funeral took place at Lewisburg, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in the family plot. Those who attended from Bellefonte were; Col. Wilbur F. Reeder, John P. Harris, William P. Humes, John I. Potter, James H. Potter Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lingle.

A CRUEL ACT.

The Body of an Infant Found In Buffalo Run Sunday Morning.

On Sunday morning John Lannon who lives near Hastings Station on the Bellefonte Central road was walking along the banks of the Buffalo Run when he saw the body of an infant child lodged against a stone about the middle of the stream. He at once notified the District Attorney and the Coroner of his find and received word that they would reach the scene, and hold an inquest in the afternoon. Mr. Lannon made his ghastly find about half-past eight in the morning and the body remained in the water watched by hundreds of people until between 3 and 4 o'clock when District Attorney Spangler, Coroner S. M. Huff and Detective J. W. Righthour reached the scene.

The body was at once removed to land and Coroner Huff empaneled a jury composed of the following gentlemen: John Lannon, Harry Young, Lowery Justice, Ed Gill, David Hampton and Herce Corman.

The child was a female and fully developed. A part of the lungs was removed and placed in the water and it floated which with other tests proved that it had lived and was not still-born. The child measured 19 inches in length. It is believed to have been of either Hungarian or Italian parentage, and had evidently been placed in the stream alive shortly before it was found. It was dead however when discovered. The body was turned over to the Overseer of the Poor of Benner township, William Witmer Jr. for burial.

The authorities will make a thorough investigation of the case.

Y. M. C. A. CONTRACT AWARDED.

Samuel Gault will Put up the building. To be Finished October 1st.

Those who have had much experience in building know that there are a great many things to look after which are liable to cause delay. Such has been the experience of the building Committee of the Y. M. C. A., and some people have even gotten the idea that the building notion had been abandoned altogether. Such is not the case, we are glad to say. Monday morning the revised plans were received from the Architect and in the afternoon the Building Committee met Mr. Samuel Gault in the Association rooms and awarded to him the contract which was duly signed by him and the officers of the Association. Mr. Gault began work Wednesday morning.

The rear portion of the present building will be torn down and a building 40x75 feet will be erected, It will contain on the first floor Toilet, games room, and Physical Directors office and a Gymnasium 40x65 feet. The latter will be equipped in modern style. Up stairs will be rooms for boys and a visitors gallery over the Gymnasium floor. In the basement will be two Bowling Alleys, Toilets, Dressing Rooms, Thuffle Board Room and the bath room equipped with five shower baths and one needle bath. The present main building will be remodeled to contain Reading Room, Reception Hall, Secretarys Office, Meeting Room and Kitchen. The meeting room will be divided, by folding doors so that it can be used for evening classes etc. Altogether the Association will have a modern Equipment and can then do a work such as will commend itself to our people.

Plans are already being made to begin in the fall.

The Building Committee take this means of again thanking those whose generous gifts have made this movement possible and solicits the help of all who are interested in an institution of helpfulness whose doors are open 365 days of every year.

New Mail Facilities.

For some months there has been a demand from the business people of this city and in fact from the resident of all the towns along the Bald Eagle Valley railroad between this city and Tyrone, that the mail facilities should be improved. It is now given out that the Postal authorities have decided to accede to these demands and increase the service by a second railway mail clerk on our Bald Eagle Valley trains. As the object of this increase of service is no doubt intended for the benefit of the general public, it is a matter of consideration which trains leaving and returning to this city should have placed on them the additional service. It is very evident to those who have given this matter any thought, that the best service to those who send mail as well as to those who are to receive the mail can be attained by adding a service on trains 52 and 53. Let train 50 agent arriving here at 2.10 p. m. return 55 which leaves here at 3.45 p. m.

Train 51 leaving here at 8.55 a. m. now carries through pouches to Bellefonte, Tyrone and points west and that service could be continued.

With the above arrangements, all the mail of a day would be distributed along this route both east and west, within the day it is mailed, which would be a much improved service.

It matters not to the general public where these routes begin just so the scheduling of them best serve the public's interests, and that we think is the object in view by the postal authorities.—Lock Haven Express.

KUROKI PUSHING FORWARD

Russia's Second Line Cut by the Japanese

DISMANTLING FORTS

Feng-Wang-Cheng was Captured on Friday During the Confusion into Which the Czar's Troops Had Been Thrown

THE RUSSIANS LOSE HEAVILY

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Japanese legation has received the following official dispatch dated Tokio, May 8.

"General Kuroki, commandant of the First Army Corps, reports that on May 6 our cavalry detachment dispersed the enemy at Feng-Wang-Cheng, which was immediately occupied by our infantry detachment. The enemy burned their ammunition before evacuating the stronghold. Refugees of the enemy who have hiding in the adjoining forests and villages continued to come out ann surrender.

"Natives say that the number of Russians who were carried on litters through Feng-Wang-Cheng on May 2 amounted to 800. It is believed that the total casualties of the enemy exceeded 3,000. Our army, which landed on Liao Tung, reports that a detachment, after repulsing a small body of the enemy, occupied Pulantien on May 6 and destroyed the railway and cut off telegraphic communications of Port Arthur."

RUSSIANS LOST HEAVILY

TOKIO, Sunday, May 8.—(noon)—Every supplemental report received from General Kuroki, commanding the First Japanese army, increases the Russians casualties in last Sunday's battle at Chiu Lien Cheng, on the Yalu river. The Japanese have buried about 1,400 Russians and 503 of the enemy's wounded in the field hospitals are reported. It is estimated that the total Russian casualties exceed twenty-five hundred. Over 300 Russian prisoners are enroute to Matsu Yama, where they are expected to arrive on Wednesday.

The Japanese captured Feng-Wang-Cheng day before yesterday (Friday).

It was the second line of the Russian defense, and a stiff fight was anticipated.

General Kuroki pressed forward and attacked before the Russians had recovered from demoralization and confusion into which they had been thrown by their previous defeat on the Yalu river.

WILLIAM C. BELL.

Death of One of Pleasant Gap's Best Known Citizens.

William C. Bell, one of Pleasant Gap's best known and most highly respected citizens, died at his home in that place Friday evening at 10 o'clock. Death was due to complication of diseases which started with an attack of rheumatism about six weeks ago.

The deceased was born at Greenwood Furnace, Huntingdon county, 63 years ago. For the past twenty years he has been a resident of Pleasant Gap and followed quite successfully the trade of a pattern maker up until the present year when ill health compelled him to lay aside the tools of his trade in a vain endeavor to recuperate his health,

Mr. Bell was an active member of the Bellefonte Castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle and Centre Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He was a sincere christian gentleman and an ardent member of the Methodist church at Pleasant Gap.

"Mate, I think I'll turn in. We'll have to be at that schooner early in the morning, and I make no doubt she'll give us plenty to do." Wilbur hesitated to reply, waiting to take his cue from what next she should say. "It's hot enough to sleep where we are," she added, "without going aboard the Bertha, though we might have a couple of blankets off to lie on. This sand's as hard as a plank."

Without answering, Wilbur showed her a couple of blanket rolls he had brought off while he was unloading part of the stores that afternoon. They took one apiece and spread them on the sand by the bleached whale's skull. Moran pulled off her boots and stretched herself upon her blanket with absolute unconcern, her hands clasped under her head. Wilbur rolled up his coat for a pillow and settled himself for the night with an assumed self possession. There was a long silence. Moran yawned again.

"I pulled the heel off my boot this morning," she said lazily, "and I've been limping all day."

"I noticed it," answered Wilbur. "Kitchell had a new pair aboard somewhere, if they're not spoiled by the water now."

"Yes?" she said indifferently. "We'll look them up in the morning."

Again there was silence.

"I wonder," she began again, staring up into the dark, "if Charlie took that frying pan off with him when he went."

"I don't know. He probably did."

"It was the only thing we had to cook abalones in. Make me think to look into the galley tomorrow. This ground's as hard as nails, for all your blankets. Well, good night, mate. I'm going to sleep."

"Good night, Moran."

Three hours later Wilbur, who had not closed his eyes, sat up and looked at Moran, sleeping quietly, her head in a pale glory of hair—looked at her and then around him at the silent, deserted land.

"I don't know," he said to himself. "Am I a right minded man and a thoroughbred, or a mushhead, or merely a prudent, sensible sort of chap that values his skin and bones? I'd be glad to put a name to myself." Then more earnestly he added, "Do I love her too much, or not enough, or love her the wrong way, or how?" He leaned toward her, so close that he could catch the savor of her breath and the smell of her neck, warm with sleep. The sleeve of the coarse blue shirt was drawn up, and it seemed to him as if her bare arm, flung out at full length, had some sweet aroma of its own. Wilbur drew softly back.

"No," he said to himself decisively; "no, I guess I am a thoroughbred after all." It was only then that he went to sleep.

When he awoke, the sea was pink with the sunrise, and one of the bay heads was all distorted and stratified by a mirage. It was hot already. Moran was sitting a few paces from him, braiding her hair.

"Hello, Moran!" he said, rousing up. "How long have you been up?"

"Since before sunrise," she said. "I've had a bath in the cove where the creek runs down. I saw a jack rabbit."

"Seen anything of Charlie and the others?"

"They've camped on the other side of the bay. But look yonder," she added.

The junk had come in overnight and was about a mile and a half from shore.

"The deuce!" exclaimed Wilbur. "What are they after?"

"Fresh water, I guess," said Moran, knotting the end of a braid. "We'd better have breakfast in a hurry and turn to on the Bertha. The tide is going out fast."

While they breakfasted they kept an eye on the schooner, watching her sides and flanks as the water fell slowly away.

"Don't see anything very bad yet," said Wilbur.

"It's somewheres in her stern," remarked Moran.

In an hour's time the Bertha Millner was high and dry, and they could examine her at their leisure. It was Moran who found the leak.

"Pshaw!" she exclaimed, with a half laugh. "We can stick that up in half an hour."

A single plank had started away from the sternpost; that was all. Otherwise the schooner was as sound as the day she left San Francisco. Moran and Wilbur had the damage repaired by noon, nailing the plank to its place and calking the seams with lamp wick. Nor could their utmost careful search discover any further injury.

"We're ready to go," said Moran, "so soon as she'll float. We can dig away around the bows here, make fast a line to that rock out yonder and warp her off at next high tide. Hello! Who's this?"

It was Charlie. While the two had been at work he had come around the shore unobserved and now stood at some little distance, smiling at them calmly.

"Well, what do you want?" cried Moran angrily. "If you had your rights, my friend, you'd be keelhauled."

"I tinkum velly hot day."

"You didn't come here to say that. What do you want?"

"I come hab talkee-talk."

"We don't want to have any talkee-talk with such vermin as you. Get out!"

Charlie sat down on the beach and wiped his forehead.

"I come buy one piece bacon. China boy no hab got."

"We aren't selling bacon to deserters," cried Moran. "And I'll tell you this, you filthy little monkey: Mr. Wilbur and I are going home—back to Frisco—this afternoon, and we're going to leave you and the rest of your vipers to rot on this beach or to be murdered by beachcombers." And she pointed out toward the junk. Charlie did not even follow the direction of her gesture, and from this very indifference Wilbur guessed that it was precisely because of the beachcombers that the Machiavelian Chinaman had wished to treat with his old officers.

"No hab got bacon?" he queried, lifting his eyebrows in surprise.

"Plenty, but not for you."

Charlie took a buckskin bag from his blouse and counted out a handful of silver and gold.

"I buy um nisi two piecee tobacco."

"Look here," said Wilbur deliberately, "don't you try to flimflam us, Charlie. We know you too well. You don't want bacon and you don't want tobacco."

"China boy heap plenty much sick. Two boy velly sick. I tinkum die pretty soon tomolla. You catchum slop chest; you gib me five, seven liver pill. Sabe?"

"I'll tell you what you want!" cried Moran, aiming a forefinger at him, pistol fashion. "You've got a blue funk because those Kai-gingh beachcombers have come into the bay, and you're more frightened of them than you are of the schooner, and now you want us to take you home."

"How muchee?"

"A thousand dollars."

Wilbur looked at her in surprise. He had expected a refusal.

"You no hab got liver pill?" inquired Charlie blandly.

Moran turned her back on him. She and Wilbur conferred in a low voice.

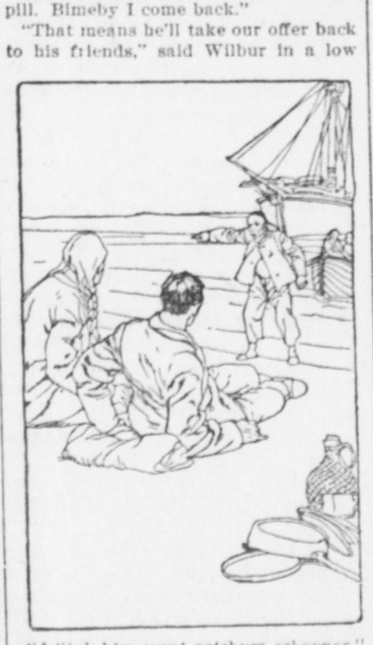
"We'd better take them back if we decently can," said Moran. "The schooner is known of course in Frisco. She went out with Kitchell and a crew of coolies, and she comes back with you and I aboard, and if we tell the truth about it it will sound like a lie, and we'll have no end of trouble. Then, again, can just you and I work the Bertha into port? In these kind of airs it's plain work, but suppose we have dirty weather? I'm not so sure."

"I gib you ten dollah fo' ten liver pill," said Charlie.

"Will you give us $1,000 to set you down in San Francisco?"

Charlie rose. "I go back. I tell um China boy what you say 'bout liver pill. Bimeby I come back."

"That means he'll take our offer back to his friends," said Wilbur in a low



"I t'ink him want catchum schooner."

voice. "You best hurry chop-chop," he called after Charlie. "We go home pretty soon."

"He knows very well we can't get away before high tide tomorrow," said Moran. "He'll take his time."

Later on in the afternoon Moran and Wilbur saw a small boat put off from the junk and make a landing by the creek. The beachcombers were taking on water. The boat made three trips before evening, but the beachcombers made no show of molesting the undefended schooner or in any way interfering with Charlie's camp on the other side of the bay.

"No," exclaimed Moran between her teeth as she and Wilbur were cooking supper—"no; they don't need to. They've got about $150,000 of loot on board—our loot too. It goes against the grain."

The moon rose considerably earlier that night, and by 12 o'clock the bay was flooded with its electrical whiteness. Wilbur and Moran could plainly make out the junk tied up to the kelp offshore. They had slept but a short time when Wilbur was awakened by Moran shaking his arm:

"There's something wrong out there," she whispered—"something wrong with the junk. Hear 'em squealing? Look, look, look!" she cried of a sudden. "It's their turn now."

Wilbur could see the crank junk, with its staring red eyes, high stern and prow, as distinctly as though at noonday. As he watched, it seemed as if a great wave caught her suddenly under foot. She heaved up bodily out of the water, dropped again with a splash, rose again and again fell back into her own ripples, that, widening from her sides, broke crisply on the sand at Wilbur's feet.

Then the commotion ceased abruptly. The bay was quiet again. An hour passed, then two. The moon began to set. Moran and Wilbur, wearied of watching, had turned in again, when they were startled to wakefulness by the creak of oarlocks and the sound of a boat grounding in the sand.

The coolies, the deserters from the Bertha Millner, were there. Charlie came forward.

"Ge' lup! Ge' lup!" he said. "Junk all smash! Kai-gingh come ashore. I t'ink him want catchum schooner."

CHAPTER IX.

"WHAT smashed the junk? What wrecked her?" demanded Moran.

The deserting Chinamen huddled around Charlie, drawing close, as if finding comfort in the feel of each other's elbows.

"No can tell," answered Charlie. "Him shake, then lif' up all the same as we. Bimeby too much lif' up. Him go all to smash. Four piecee Chinamen dlown."

"Drown! Did any of them drown?" exclaimed Moran.

"Four piecee dlown," reiterated Charlie calmly. "One, thlee, five, nine, come asho'. Him other no come."

"Where are the ones that came ashore?" asked Wilbur.

Charlie waved a hand back into the night. "Him make um camp topside ole house."

"That old whaling camp," prompted Moran. Then to Wilbur, "You remember—about a hundred yards north the creek?"

Wilbur, Moran and Charlie had drawn off a little from the Bertha Millner's crew. The latter squatted in a line along the shore—silent, reserved, looking vaguely seaward through the night. Moran spoke again, her scowl thickening:

"What makes you think the beachcombers want our schooner?"

"Him catchum schooner sure! Him want um boat to go home. No can get."

"Let's put off tonight—right away," said Wilbur.

"Low tide," answered Moran, "and besides—Charlie, did you see them close? Were you near them?"

"No go muchee close."

"Did they have something with them reeved up in a hammock—something that smelled sweet—like a joss stick, for instance?"

"No savvy; no can tell. Him try catchum schooner sure. Him velly bad China boy. See Yup China boy, velly bad. I b'long Sam Yup. Savvy?"

"Ah, the tongs?"

"Yass. I Sam Yup. Him," and he pointed to the Bertha's crew, "Sam Yup. All we Sam Yup; nisi him," and he waved a hand toward the beachcombers' camp; "him See Yup. Savvy?"

"It's a tong row," said Wilbur. "They're blood enemies, the See Yups and Sam Yups."

Moran felt thoughtful, digging her boot heel into the sand, her thumbs hooked into her belt, her forehead gathered into a heavy frown. There was a silence.

"One thing," she said at last, "we can't give up the schooner. They would take our stores as well, and then where are we? Marooned, by Jove! How far do you suppose we are from the nearest town? Three hundred miles wouldn't be a bad guess, and they've got the loot—our ambergris—I'll swear to that! They didn't leave that aboard when the junk sank."

"Look here, Charlie," she said, turning to the Chinaman. "If the beachcombers take the schooner—the Bertha Millner—from us, we'll be left to starve on this beach."

"I tinkum yass."

"How are we going to get home? Are you going to let them do it? Are you going to let them have our schooner?"

"I tink no can have."

"Look here," she went on, with sudden energy. "There are only nine of them now to our eight. We're about even. We can fight those swine. I know we can. If we jumped their camp and rushed them hard, believe me we could run them into the sea. Mate," she cried, suddenly facing Wilbur, "are you game? Have you got blood in you? Those beachcombers are going to attack us tomorrow before high tide; that's flat. There's going to be a fight anyway. We can't let them have the schooner. It's starvation for us if we do.

"They mean to make a dash for the Bertha, and we've got to fight them off. If there's any attacking to be done, I propose to do it! I propose we jump their camp before it gets light—now, tonight, right away, run in on them there, take them by surprise, do for one or two of them if we have to and get that ambergris, then cut back to the schooner, up our sails and wait for the tide to float us off. We can do it; I know we can. Mate, will you back me up?"

"Back you up? You bet I'll back you up, Moran! But"— Wilbur hesitated. "We could fight them so much more to advantage from the deck of the schooner. Why not wait for them aboard? We could have our sails up anyhow, and we could keep the beachcombers off till the tide rose high enough to drive them back. Why not do that?"

"I tink bes' wait topside boat," assented Charlie.

"Yes; why not, Moran?"

"Because," shouted the girl, "they've got our loot! I don't propose to be plundered of $150,000 if I can help it."

"Wassa dat?" demanded Charlie. "Hunde' fifte' thousand you hab got?"

In the Rear, Occupy the Railroad and Cut the Telegraph Line—Admiral Skrydloff Shut Out.

THE JAPANESE LANDED 10,000 TROOPS

ST. PETERSBURG, May 7.—A dispatch received last night says that Port Arthur is cut off from all communication by land, the Japanese having disembarked in its rear, occupied the railroad and cut the telegraph.

Vice Admiral Skrydloff, who is enroute to Port Arthur to take command of the naval forces in the Far East, will be unable to reach his destination.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 7.—The Minister of War has received the following telegram from Major General Pflug, chief of the military staff.

"According to the information I have received, seven of the enemy's transports and afterwards about forty appeared opposite Pitsewo on the evening of May 4.

"On the morning of May 5 the Japanese began to land at Pitsewo and on the coast, near Cape Terminal (about 15 miles southwest of Pitsewo) under cover of artillery fire.

"At this moment about 60 tra sports were observed bearing down upon the whole front and our posts retired from the shore.

"All papers in the postoffice at Pitsewo were removed and the Russian inhabitants abandoned the town.

JAPS LANDED 10,000 TROOPS.

"According to Chinese reports, by the evening of May 5 about 10,000 of the enemy's troops had landed and taken up quarters in the Chinese villages near the points of debarkation.

"The enemy sent two columns of about one regiment each, one in a westerly direction and the other to the southward.

"On May 6 a posenger train from Port Arthur was fired upon a mile and a quarter outside Polandien (abont 40 miles north of Port Arthur) by a hundred Japanese infantrymen occupying the heights east of the railway. The train carried many passengers, 200 sick occupying an ambulance carriage flying the Red Cross flag. Two of the sick were wounded. The train succeeded in reaching Polandien.

A Son of Geo. Nox McCain Came Near Drowning.

Lewisburg, May 5.—Two students of Bucknell University, D. R McCain, of Colorado Springs, Col., son of George Nox McCain, formerly of Philadelphia, and A. C. Thompson, of Franklin, had a narrow escape from drowning in the Susquehanna river

The canoe in which the students were seated was upset in the swift current. Their yells for help brought two men to their aid as they were about to go down.

The boat of the rescuers was also upset, and for half an hour the four men were swept down the river in the darkness.

A second rescuing party reached the quartette and took them to shore.

The screams of the students for help were heard all over the town, and almost half the population, as well as the student body, was at the river's edge, to assist the rescuers.

Young Plants

Every farmer knows that some plants grow better than others. Soil may be the same and seed may seem the same but some plants are weak and others strong.

And that's the way with children. They are like young plants. Same food, same home, same care but some grow big and strong while others stay small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion offers an easy way out of the difficulty. Child weakness often means starvation, not because of lack of food, but because the food does not feed.

Scott's Emulsion really feeds and gives the child growing strength.

Whatever the cause of weakness and failure to grow—Scott's Emulsion seems to find it and set the matter right.

STATE FARMERS.

Annual Institute to be Held at Bellefonte and State College.

Harrisburg, May 6.—Deputy Secretary of Agriculture A. L. Martin Thursday said that a week's normal school will be held in connection with the annual Farmers' institute, at Bellefonte and State College, from Monday, Oct. 10, to Saturday, Oct. 15, and it will undoubtedly be the most important agricultural gathering the state has ever known.

Competent instructors in subjects of practical interest to all farmers will lecture throughout the week. Deputy Martin is now devoting a great deal of time and pains in making arrangements for the event and has already secured the consent of many prominent men to speak.

Dr. William Frear, of State College, has already been secured to speak on soil fertility, while Professor Butts, of the same institution, will talk on horticultural pursuits, and Professor Surface, state economic zoologist, will lecture on insects. Dr. Leonard Pearson will be among the speakers, and many more will help to make the school a most instructive one. Agricultural institutions of every description will be invited to attend the gathering.

A conference to expedite the work of enforcing the dairy and food laws was held Tuesday evening at the office of Commissioner Warren. Besides the commissioner the following were present: Hon. N. B. Critchfield, secretary of agriculture; Hon. S. J. M. McCarrell, E. B. Witmer, Sunbury; Hon. Charles L. Brown, Philadelphia; J. Foust, western district agent, Altoona; R. M. Simmers, eastern district agent, Phoenixville.

Dairy and Food Commissioner Warren Wednesday ordered twenty-five prosecutions in the western part of the state for the sale of alleged chocolate and cocoa, which the state chemist found contained a large percentage of wheat flour, which though not injurious is much cheaper than the substances in which it was used as an adulterant. Several prosecutions have also been ordered in Western Pennsylvania for the sale of maple syrups adulterated with glucose and cane sugar, both of which are cheaper than maple syrup.

Medical Judgement Against the Rod.

The lash has had its day. It is too late now to officially countenance the infliction of pain, either as a punishment for offences committed by children or adults.

In all schools, and particularly in the public schools, there is a considerable proportion of backward, deficient and feebleminded children. These should be careful segregated, observed and instructed in accordance with their special needs For the rest, let their be rewards, humane penalties, drill—military, perhaps, and last but far from least, and abundance and variety of sports, not only for purely physical reasons, but as vents for that mischief that still lingers with us as a fantastic heritage of our simian ancestry.

Nothing that is permanently good can be brought about by force or brutality. The infliction of pain is never an argument favor of right or justice'—Medical Record.

Where Is The Yankee Fleet?

BY G. W. F.

There sailed into harbor one morning
From out of the offing somewhere
And it staid there waiting and watching
The fleet of the Russian bear
Its guns were a-shot to the muzzle,
Its bunkers held Russian gold;
And it came here and staid for a purpose
That no other such history has told;
For the land was aflame with battle
While troubles were everywhere
And out in the nations of Europe
We hadn't a friend but The Bear.
So it staid, a waiting and watching
Some tell us a year and a day
But no other fleets of old Europe sailed away!
So I wander, in turn, when affliction
Has come unto Russia's kind shores,
Where the fleet of the Yankee lies anchored,
With its bullets and money and stores.

Painting the Coaches.

The coaches of the Central R. R. of Pa. are undergoing their regular spring renovation and already one train has been turned out of the shops looking about as fine as new paint and varnish can make it.

The colors are practically as they have been, a deep olive green on the bodies, though the trucks are a shade lighter; being finished in buff with black trimmings. The coaches present a handsome appearance and would continue to do so if the Central had a car barn to house them in when not in use, instead of leaving them stand out in the weather all the time.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

BRINGS THE

SUNSHINE OF HEALTH AND HAPPINESS TO SICK WOMEN.

Backed up by over a third of a century of remarkable and uniform cures, a record such as no other remedy for the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women ever attained, the proprietors and makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription now feel fully warranted in offering to pay $500 in legal money for any case of Leucorrhea, Female Weakness, Prolapsus, or Falling of Womb, which they cannot cure. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

Very often a married woman or young girl does not know who to turn to for advice in circumstances where she dislikes to talk with the family physician about delicate matters. At such times write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for free consultation and advice, and the same will be held as sacredly confidential. It is foolish to consult women friends or persons without medical training.

All other compounds intended for women only are made with alcohol, or alcohol is a large component—this alcohol injures the nerves. The little red corpuscles of the blood are shrunken by alcohol. All such compounds, therefore, do harm.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was the first exclusively woman's tonic on the market—it has sold more largely in the past third of a century than any other medicine for women.

Hicks for May.

A return of storm conditions will appear about the 8th, in rising thermometer, falling barometer, easterly to southerly winds and growing cloudiness. These changes will, of course, appear first in the west, and during the 8th, 9th and 10th they will move eastward over the country, resulting in more storms of more or less violence. The fact is, a cycle of daily storms for a number of successive days is quite probable at this time. But decided disturbance may be reasonably expected about the 9th to 10th, with electrical storms on and touching the 10th. Another sudden and marked change to cooler will follow after these storms. If a cool wave and frosts should not follow the first storm period, look for much cooler with heavy frosts northward about the 10th-12th.

The third storm period extends from the 12th to 17th, being central on the 14th. As we enter this period look for change to warm and balmy weather. The winds will shift to southerly, the barometer will suddenly fall, and the skies soften into the serenity that foreruns active storms. By the 15th wide areas of cloud and storm, with very warm and ominous atmosphere, will be well in motion from west to east. Heavy rains, thunder and hail will follow in many parts of the country as the storm centers advance during the 14th to 17th. Change to much cooler, with probable frost in the north, will certainly come when storms are over.

The fourth storm period extends from about the 20th to the 22rd. If as the previous May periods heavy and prolonged disturbances occurred, the same character of phenomena only much lighter, may be looked for at this time. But if disturbances fail to take on the violent forms mentioned in previous periods, this fourth period may be counted on as one of general and severe storms. The culmination of the period will fall on the 22nd and 23rd, after which look for rising barometer and change to much cooler.

The fifth storm period covers the 24th to 28th, normally, put is extended over the 29th by the opposition, or full of the moon. This period will bring a regular return of storm conditions—higher temperature, falling barometer, and rain and thunder storms.

—Cresson will have a new passenger station in the near future. Plans to that effect have been completed. The facilities for the transportating of passengers from the main line to the Cambria and Clearfield division are unsatisfactory and provisions for the change have been made.

Two Oil Wells to be Sunk Near Centre Hall.

The stockholders, foreign and local, of the Penns Valley Oil and Manufacturing Company met in the office of the Penns Valley Banking Company, Monday of this week, for the purpose of electing officers, and transacting other business of the corporation. The officers elected are President, S. S. McKenzie, Smethport.

Secretary, B. S. Stareky, Hazlehurst.
Treasurer, J. N. Van Gorden, Bolivar, N. Y.

The most important business transacted, especially to those in and about Centre Hall, was the letting of a contract to a skilled oil well driller to bore two wells in the vicinity of Centre Hall, the definite place to be selected later. The work connected with the sinking of these shafts is to begin within the next ten days. The contract calls for boring to the depth of at least two thousand feet.

The foreign investors are very sanguine that there is a treasure hid in Penns Valley within the reach of the modern drill. One of the members, who has made a special study of the geological conditions of Centre Pennsylvania with reference to oil and gas fields, contends that Centre Hall is on a certain line in range with productive fields.

One thing, at least, has been definitely settled, and that is that two test borings will be made. If successful, there will be an unheard of scramble; if failure follows, the brunt of battle will been have fought by foreign capital.

At all events, thanks to W. B. Mingle, Esq., at least several thousand dollars will be spent in the immediate vicinity of Centre Hall.—Centre Hall Reporter.

Samuel Shutt.

At the advanced age of seventy-six years, two months and fifteen days, Samuel Shutt, of Centre Hall, passed into eternity. Death occured Sunday from a complication of diseases. Interment was made at Tusseyville, Rev. Daniel Gress officiating.

The deceased was born in Brush Valley. On reaching manhood he married Miss Sallie Wagner, now deceased. There survive four children, namely, W. Frank Shutt, Centre Hall; Mary J., wife of Jerry C. Brown, of Potters Mills; Margaret A., wife of John Dunlap, Bellefonte; Samuel W. Shutt, Lock Haven.

—City Treasurer Frederick Sheffield, of Altoona, dreamed Saturday night that he was undergoing initiation into the Fraternal Order of Eagles and had been commanded to fly. He obeyed by jumping from a third story window and fractured a leg. The Eagles' initiation ceremony must be a bird.

Mrs. Mary Beckwith Dead.

Mrs. Mary Beckwith, widow of Clement Beckwith, who has been making her home with Mr. and Mrs. S. I. Reber, of Howard, the past eight years, died on Wednesday of last week at the ripe old age of 90 years and 17 days. She was born in Bethlehem April 17, 1814, and has been a member of the Presbyterian church the past 75 years.

Although she is the last member of this family, she leaves a host of friends and relatives to mourn her departure. She was laved by all and will be greatly missed. She has been in good health until a few months ago, and had been confined to her bed the past three weeks of disease incident to old age, which she bore patiently.

The funeral took place on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the house. Interment in the Jacksonville cemetery, Rev. D. A. Artman officiated.—Howard Husler.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c. and $1. sizes.

You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Home of Swamp-Root.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp Root, Dr. Kimmer's Swamp Root and the address on every bottle, Binghampton, N. Y.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., May, 8, 1904

Between now and November voters will have ample opportunity to think about the tariff and come to a definite conclusion whether it is better to maintain the present form of indirect taxation and get most of the revenue for the government through the custom house, or whether the people prefer direct taxation with an augmented internal revenue. The main issue between the two opposing political parties will concern the tariff question. President Roosevelt says he wants the Republican platform to say exactly what the party intends to do regarding the tariff. He thinks it best to have a short platform, and naturally it should be heartily in sympathy with the Administration. A Senator Lodge, of Mass., is to be chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, and as he dictated the tariff plank in the platform of the Massachusetts Republicans, he can be relied upon to carry out the President's wishes. Senator Aldrich, of R. I., is engaged in assisting Senator Lodge in writing the tariff plank. Those who have kept abreast with the trend of affairs at home and abroad are confident that the leaders of the Republican party will agree to modify the tariff, or revise its schedules, at the next session of Congress, "as circumstances may require." There is a strong feeling in New England in favor of reciprocity with Canada, and a large number of manufacturers in Boston and vicinity have petitioned to that effect. But the trade between the Dominion and the States is constantly increasing and is now in a very healthy condition, and largely in favor of this country, New England being a manufacturing district wants free raw materials, and possibly some way may be devised to accomplish that purpose. It is now plain that the great questions before the American people for future adjustment are the tariff, trusts, wages, domestic and foreign commerce and the merchant marine. These are non-political, economic and social questions, of interest to all the people who live beneath the stars and stripes.

The search for a good man for Vice President to run on the ticket with President Roosevelt continues. Senator Fairbanks, of Ind., declares he is out of the race. He is looking ahead. Speaker Cannon, renowned for his sterling common sense, prefers to be speaker of the House of the people than to dwell as a non-entity in the tents of the Senate. Under no circumstances would he accept the nomination. He says Illinois is a safe Republican State in any event, and therefore it is not necessary for him to make a personal sacrifice. He looks for a Republican majority in the next House, and will be a candidate for re-election as Speaker.

Since Congress adjourned the White House has become the political headcentre. A few days since Cornelius N. Bliss of New York dined with the President, and the question of the chairmanship of the Republican National Committee was discuseed, but not decided. It is stated that the position may be offered to Gov. Murphy of N. J., upon his return from Europe. It has been decided to send a baker's dozen of Senators into Indiana to stump that state and enlighten the people. The best speakers in the Senate have been chosen—strong, able, eloquent and good looking men. The list includes Senators, Allison, Ia.; Lodge, Mass., Spooner and Quarles, Wis., Nelson and Clapp, Minn.; Dolliver, Ia., Foraker, O., Alger, Mich.; Cullom, Ills,; Dillingham, Vt.; Burnham, N. H.; and possibly McComas of Maryland. This is a strong team and should cut a wide political swath.

We call attention to the announcement of Hon. John G. Love as a candidate for re-nomination at the hands of the Republican party and for re-election by the voters to the bench which he has so ably filled during the past ten years. He has made a very good judge having expedited the business of the Court and saved the county much expense and we trust to see him re-elected by a good majority. His reversals by the Superior and Supreme courts on cases carried up have been very few, showing good judicial acumen, and his standing among the judiciary of the state is very high, he being repeatedly called to preside over benches in all parts of the state.

A. A. Dale Esq., one of Bellefonte's brightest attorneys announces himself in this issue as a candidate for the legislature subject to the rules of the Republican party. He has been a lifelong, active Republican, a man of brains and an eloquent speaker. If Centre County chooses him as her representative on the floor of the house at Harrisburg she will never have cause to be ashamed of that selection.

—On Sunday morning about 11 o'clock, Nellie Washington Wilson, the two year old daughter of Newton I., and Carrie Delaney Wilson, of Loveville, set fire to herself while playing with some matches. She was burned so seriously that she died on Monday at noon. The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

CANDIDATES FORGING AHEAD.

Constant Stream of Ballots Prove That Each Contestant is Putting Fourth Their Best Efforts.

Big gains have been made by nearly all leading candidates in The Republican-News World's Fair Contest since last week. No better evidence of the interest and enthusiasm of the contestants could be offered than the constant stream of ballots that is pouring in.

There is no longer time for hesitation. Those who are desirous of winning must put forth every effort. A rapid pace has been set, and the contest has reached that stage where to drop behind even for a single day means a serious handicap.

While no one is absolutely certain of victory every candidate has a fighting chance; that is an opportunity to forge a head by hard and consistent work.

From now on until the end of the contest every ballot is one step nearer the goal, and the winner will be those who use the remaining time to the best advantage.

Knowledge is Power

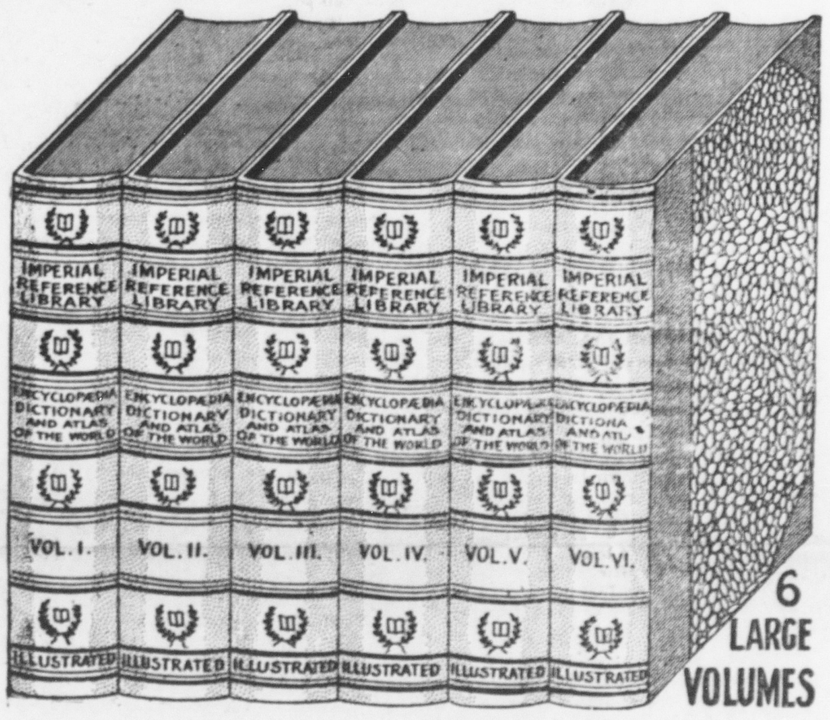
Therefore you can have power by reading and using for reference

The Imperial Reference Library.

The best condensed reference library so far extant has the ablest men in the world for its editors and writers. The work is an

Up-to-date Encyclopedia, A Complete Word Dictionary, A Universal Short History, A Fine Biographical Dictionary and a New Gazetteer and World Atlas.

The whole making a regular Bound University containing over 15,000 biographies, 250 portraits of noted men and women, 150 complete colored maps of all parts of the world, 150,000 dictionary words, many valuable colored plates of Birds, Flags, Coats of Arms, Emblems, etc. 5,000 illustrations of subjects all brought up-to-date.



Contains double the number of subjects treated in all other Encyclopedias combined, in a condensed form, giving the pith of the matter at once.

Success is What All Are Striving For.

Every young man or woman who makes their first serious attempt in life is inspired by the hope that sooner or later success will crown their efforts. Parents today realize more than ever that their children must be equipped with educational advantages of the highest order if success is to be attained. Success is not achieved in an hour, a day or month, but comes at the end of years of hard and concentrated effort, after years of careful preparation. PREPARATION is a good word and comes just before SUCCESS. The man or woman who neglects to properly prepare for the battle of life invariably meets with failure. YOU HAVE HEARD THAT WORD BEFORE. Ninety-five per cent. of those who go into business fail. WHY? Because Ninety-five per cent. for lack of business qualifications are totally unfit to meet the business conditions of today. Therefore, an authoritive Reference Library in each and every school house, private home and library in the county is an absolute necessity, for those who would succeed in their life's work. One which will answer instantly the thousand and one facts, new or forgotten that render the life of all persons one of continuous interrogation. Such a Library is a thoroughly reliable and up-to-date Encyclopedia, Dictionary, History, Gazetter, Atlas and work on Biography and Science. It must be complete, concise, sufficiently full in treatment, but not too profound, dealing in all things in the light of the present day knowledge, compact in form, convenient in arrangement and moderate in price. Realizing that the future of many of our citizens, both in town and throughout the county, depends upon the possession of just such a work Many of our literary, professional and business people are pleased to say that we have purchased and made a critical examination of this great condensation of Reference Works, and the World's Knowledge which is so arranged that it is perfectly easy for the investigator to refer to any subject in an instant.

READ BELOW the endorsements of our home educators. Thousands of other endorsements from eminent men and women all over the country can also be shown you. These below of some of our best known citizens:

From I. C. M. Ellenberger,
Supt. Tyrone Public Schools.

The Imperial Reference Library will prove a most useful and valuable work in the hands of the student. It is a universal fund of information condensed into six volumes, yet giving the substance of subjects treated in full. In fact, an up-to-date encyclopedia with such arrangement that much valuable time is saved to the business and professional man. Its authors are a guarantee of the accuracy of its facts. I. C. M. ELLENBERGER.

From Geo. I. Brown,
Rector St. John's Episcopal Church.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Books are tools of the mind. This cannot too often be said—that those who buy dictionaries or other compilations of knowledge, for the home and the family, are wise beyond what doth yet appear.

Contrary to the rule which I have striven to set myself, I am constrained to consent to say that this Work appears to be of most excellent merit. That it would be valuable in any household, in addition to or in substitution to any other. Its price too, is reasonable. It almost seems as if it were the best for the money. It may be the best on all counts. GEO. I. BROWN.

Rev. H. C. Holloway, D. D.,
Pastor St. John's Lutheran Church.

The Imperial Reference Library is without a doubt a vast library in itself. It is the best work of its kind, for the family and school, I know of. It gives in a nutshell what a professional or business man wants on any subject. It is decidedly THE work for a busy life; it economizes time, gives the information desired, concisely and directly. It covers every field of research. The work is all it professes. It is a rich treasure of information in any library.
Bellefonte, Pa., Apr. 26, 1904.

From James R. Hughes,
Principal Bellefonte Academy.

It is with great pleasure that I bear testimony to the value of the Imperial Reference Library. A careful examination of the scope of the information contained in the six volumes convinces me that this Library is indispensable, at least, to any home where there are boys and girls of the Grammar, high school or academic grades. The character and reputation of the editors and contributors should guarantee its popularity. The courses of study in our schools today require a vast amount of reference work. With its several and most comprehensive features of Encyclopedia, Dictionary, Compendium of Biography, Gazetteer and Atlas, the Imperial Reference Library offers more information than hundreds of volumes have been able to produce hitherto. I consider that the editors of such libraries are conferring inestimable benefits upon the educational institutions and homes of the world.

Special advertising club now forming. Lasts for a short time only. So act quickly.

The Imperial is new, American, authoritive. Tells you about all notions, peoples, places and things you wish to know. Needed in the home, office, factory, study and school. If you would have your children succeed, excell others in school, business and through life, join the club at once and make a great saving in money, on little easy payments. Errors by the Hot-Air men gave them 9 runs which made the score as it stands while good constant hard hitting gave the Hot-Air men their 17 runs. Many C. T. A. U. enthusiasts were gathered on the side lines to spur their favorites on to victory but it was of no avail because they were hopeless at the hands of Gilliland. Manual Burns umpired the game in a very impartial manner and deserves credit.

Burglars in Town.

Sometime between Monday night and Tuesday morning some evil disposed person or persons broke into Lyon & Company's store at this place. They gained an entrance by a window in the rear of the store. The window in question has wooden shutters which had been closed and locked the night before. They were pried open and the catch broken, The lock to the window was also broken and in this way the thieves gained an entrance. They did not take any goods and were evidently after money only. They broke open the cash drawer and took about $5.00 in money leaving some postage stamps untouched that were in the drawer. They then made their escape and the robbery was not discovered until the next morning.

The thieves also broke into the Pennsylvania Passenger station but failed to get anything of value.

THE METHODIST CONFERENCE

Proceedings of the Great Meeting in Los Angeles.

EPISCOPAL ADDRESS

Entire Morning Session was Occupied in Hearing the Important Topics Discussed in the Document.

OTHER MATTERS OF IMPORTANCE

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 6.—The reading of the Episcopal address by Bishop Cyrus D. Foss, occupied the entire time of the morning session of the Methodist general conference. The address, which was prepared and concurred in by all of the bishops, was a voluminous and comparative resume of church conditions for the past quadrennium, and contained recommendations of action by the general conference on matters affecting the church militant policy.

Chief in popular interest among the topics in the address were social amusements, total abstinence from use of intoxicating beverages, legal prohibition by stoppage of manufacture of intoxicating liquors for beverages, the iniquity of Mormonism, the need of national legislation for the universal prohibition of polygamy in the United States, establishment of Episcopal residences in foreign lands, abolish of the class distinctions between missionary bishops, and general superintendent bishops, the placing of the supernumerary clergymen upon a more equal financial standing in annual conference, work in the Epworth League, church extension, general benevolence, action in carrying out recommendations of the last General conference to the Washington, D. C., university plan, punishment for political corruption, church meditation, to ameliorate conditions of strife between organized capital and organized labor, etc.

Officers of the various standing committees of the conference have been chosen.

Conference held two sessions yesterday, the morning session being devoted to the reading of the quadrennial address of the Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church to the general conference, and the afternoon to the receipt and reference of memorials from the various annual conferences. The morning session was presided over by Bish p Warren, and the afternoon session by Bishop Walden.

The various committees got together during the early morning hours and elected their respective chairmen and secretaries, but as there was no business before them, an adjournment was taken until today.

Beginning today the general conference will hold sessions only in the morning, thus allowing the delegates to give their attention during the afternoon to committee work.

A resolution was offered by Rev. Horace Jacobs, of the Central Pennsylvania conference, to request the publishers of the Daily Christian Advocate, the official organ of the conference, to withdraw from its advertising columns all reference to Sunday newspapers. One of the publishers of the Advocate gave assurance to the conference that if the resolution should be withdrawn there would be no further cause for complaint on that score.

Largest Pine in the State.

The famous pine tree near the Half way house between Cresson and Loretto has been cut down. This tree, which was perhaps the largest in the state, had been for many years an object of interest and curiosity to visitors to the mountain tops. Charles Summer, the great orator and statesman, while recovering from the effect of the assault made upon him in Washington by young Brooks, was a guest at the Mountain house, and frequently visited the "big tree," so that it has a peculiar historic interest. The circumference of the stump at the ground is 33 feet, and the diameter four feet from the ground is nine feet nine inches. The rings of growth on the stump would show the tree to be over 400 years old, so that it was probably a sapling when Columbus discovered America, a good sized tree when St. Augustine was settled, and it was a "giant" pine when Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence. Twelve large prongs, each as large as an ordinary tree, branched out from the trunk about 10 or 12 feet from the ground. It is said the 57 logs cut from the tree will be worth at least $500.

THE YOUNG MAN AND THE YOUNG WOMAN.

Their Demeanor in Public. How it May be Improved. Advantages of Common Sense Outdoor Association.

BY CHRISTINE TERHUNE HERRICK,
Author of "Cradle and Nursery," "First Aid to the Young Housekeepers," "Housekeeping Made Easy," "What to Eat," "In City Tents,

(Copyright, 1904, by Christine Herrick.)

In the Spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of out-door sports. So does that of the young woman. In fact, it is extremely probable that they have not waited until now to bestow consideration upon such matters, but have been planning for them while still the snow was blowing and the streams frozen.

Now, as the roads get in good order and the mud dries from the fields, the golf clubs are brought out, the wheels are overhauled and put in condition and all sorts of plans are laid for Saturday half-holidays, and vacation times.

With the return to the possibility of this sort of thing arises the annual question as to how much liberty is to be allowed our young men and our young women in their association with one another. Are they to go about together unchaperoned, as they have done from time immemorial in the country and small towns, or are the rules of smart society in the big cities to be complied with? There are advocates of both sides of the matter and each has its pros and cons.

There is a somewhat exaggerated idea of the conventions that exist in this respect even in large cities and among fashionable folk. A fierce light beats upon the throne and those who are almost as well known as royalty and have their actions chronicled in all the papers have to abstain from many simple joys they doubtless covet. Those who follow hard after them in their struggle for social eminence but who have not yet attained to it, often imagine themselves to be of so much importance that they conform to certain rigid requirements. Thus, for instance, I heard not long ago of one of these seekers for society-column fame who severely criticised a mother for permitting her eighteen-year old daughter to go to the opera, unaccompanied except by her thirteen year old brother. "The mother should have gone along, or else sent some elderly woman friend," pronounced the censor. "There is no knowing to what remarks the young people laid themselves open by going unchaperoned."

To which a sensible woman replied, "The persons who recognized them would understand the situation and it would not be worth while to worry about the judgment of those who did not know them."

We may afford to lay aside the consideration of such standards a these and study rather what rule should be followed in the small town or the country neighborhood among young men and women who are in good social standing there. How shall they deal with the problem of the chaperone? Shall they ignore it altogether or conform to it in certain instances and neglect it in others? And how is the discrimination to be made?

Here is one of the matters where it is almost impossible to make a positive statement. The personal equation counts for a large amount. In every circle there are to be found young women who could be protected by no amount of chaperonage and others who would be secure in the midst of any and all temptations. But putting aside either of those extremes,—although I like to think that the latter is not an extreme, but just what one might look for from any nice, well brought up American girl,—let us try to frame a few general plans.

In the first place, then, before granting permission to your daughter to accept invitations to out door junketings from young men, be pretty sure of your young man. He should not be picked up at random, so to speak. It is bad enough if the man who calls on a girl in her home is the chance acquaintance, with no endorsement except from those who know only his name, but it is much worse if he is to be a girl's companion on a row or a ride or even on the golf links,—although the last is probably the least undesirable locality in which to be left alone with a comparative stranger. Putting aside all other questions, there is always the possibility, of accidents of one sort or another on out door excursions and the girl who accepts a young man's invitations for one of these should be sure that he is the man on whom she would be willing to depend in case of such an accident.

Also, she should know the man well enough,—or her mother or father should know him well enough,—to be sure that his character is such as to make him a desirable companion. He may not be of necessity a bad sort and yet his bringing up, his associates, may have been such that a girl's parents may feel it is decidedly inadvisable that their daughter should stamp herself in public with him as his friend and companion. But if he is known to be a clean, honorable, well bred young fellow and if the girl is the right sort of self respecting young woman, there is no reason why the two may not have certain outings together without laying themselves open to criticism. Of course, all these outings must be chosen with judgment.

Suppose a girl and a man have been infected with the returning fondness for bicycle riding. The new wheels are enough to win even old boys and old girls to a desire to learn what wheeling really means. Is there any reason why the young couple should not go out for a short spin or for a long run? None in the world. If they choose to take a compact lunch with them and eat it by the roadside and rest there afterwards and read or chat, they may do it without fear of censure,—provided, always provided,—that they are the sort of young man and woman I have described. I do not think it is the wise thing to permit this liberty too freely among heedless, feather brained boys or girls. There may be no real harm in it. But the animal spirits of youth do strange things sometimes and many a girl or boy has been carried away to an exhibition of romping, a display of hoydenishness that has laid up store of uncomfortable feeling for later days, when a better appreciation has been gained of true dignity and self respect.

Take them for all in all, our boys and girls are pretty thoroughly to be relied upon and the worst there is to fear from them, as a rule, is a lapse into silliness. But even this it is well to spare them. And so, I say, be sure of your boy and girl before turning them loose unchaperoned. If they have been trained as they should have been they will be guilty of no mistake,—but both should have had practically the same sort of training before they are granted full liberty.

The rule that applies to cycling applies to boating, to fishing, to walking, to riding, to driving. If signs go for anything however, there will probably be more wheeling during the coming season than any other of the sports I have named. The bicycle is not what it was once,—a machine that had to be cleaned and oiled the moment it was brought in from an outing. The new chainless does away with this nuisance. The coaster brake, the possibilities of a two speed gear give charms to the wheel that it never possessed before. It is a season when it is necessary to decide what rules we shall lay down for our young people when they go bicycling. Once upon a time it might have seemed needless but we are entering upon a different order of things.

Even the best bred boys and girls will occasionally give way to the animal spirits aforesaid and make fools of themselves. That is, they will have a tendency to do this. And for that reason it is a good thing for their parents to send them out equipped with a sufficient store of good advice. Often it is mere thoughtlessness that makes young people ride along country roads yelling like Comanches and disturbing the peace of quite folk. Sometimes they seem to lay aside their manners when they put on their cycling togs. On this account it is often more desirable to have a chaperone when there is a large party than when there are only a few on the expedition. A racket of any sort is contagious and where two or three people would not think of waking the echoes with their shrieks of innocent glee, a dozen or so would be pretty sure to raise a rumpus.

There are other conditions in which a chaperone is advisable, One is when the excursion is to be extended and a return made late in the day. If the party means to stop for a night anywhere, a chaperone is indispensable. It may be a jolly young married woman or a girl of the older set who is the sister of one of the younger members of the band. In any case, she will lend dignity to the company. Even if a meal is to be taken at a hotel or inn it is well to have an older person along.

Once it would have been hard to find a woman of even comparatively mature years who could be called upon to chaperone a wheeling party. But we have changed all that. The improvements in modern science are bringing things to such a pass that soon there will be no old people. They will all of them be always young. Keeping in step with this advance is modern invention, making exercise not only easy, but a delight. The visions that the old men saw and the dreams that the young men dreamed in Bible times will be matched by the realities that will be achieved by the young, middle aged and even elderly woman who have the physical training that keeps them in order supplemented by the means that render out door excursions a joy.

THE REPORT OF THE RUSSIANS

Russian General's Position Was Untenable

BOMBARDMENT SEVERE

Russians Made a Gallant Defense Under Great Odds—Japs Took the Offensive.

GROUND HELD WITH HEAVY LOSSES.

St. Petersburg, May 4.—The Emperor today received the following dispatch from General Kuropatkin:

"Major General Kashtalinsky reports as follows:

"'I consider it my duty to report the circumstances of the grievious, yet glorious, battle fought by the troops under my command with the superior forces of the Japanese on May 1.

"'Early in the morning of April 30, the Japanese began to oppress our left flank, having on the previous evening occupied the Khussan heights after an attack, in consequence of which had ordered the 22d regiment, which had occupied Khussan to retire across the Ai river to our position at Potietensky.

"'On the morning of the same day an extraordinarily prolonged and violent bombardment of our whole position at Kin-Lien-Cheng commenced from Wiju. I forsaw that the Japanese after the bombardment, in which over 2,000 projectiles were discharged, would take the offensive.

"'I received orders from Lieutenant General Zassalitch to accept battle and to retain my position at the forts of Potietinsky.

"'My left flank was defended by two battalions of the 32d regiment and the Third battery of the Sixth brigade.

"'The Japanese took the offensive at five o'clock in the morning, dispatching at least one division of infantry, which, advancing in column, sustained enormous losses, but crossed the ford and attacked our position, which was exposed to the fire of thirty-six field guns and siege batteries.

"'The Japanese advanced and occupied the position.

"'Towards noon I ascertained that the Japanese had routed the batalion of the 22d regiment posted at Chin-Gow, and were turning my left flank.

"'At 1 o'clock in the afternoon my left flank was reinforced by two battalions of the Eleventh regiment and a battery commanded by Lieutenant Col. Moravsky, which were sent from the reserve by Gen. Zassalitch with orders to hold their ground until the departure of the Ninth and Tenth regiments from Sakhodza. I ordered the Eleventh regiment to occupy a commanding position in the rear from which they could fire on the enemy from two sides.

"'I held Lieutenant Colonel Moravsky's battery in reserve and ordered the Twelfth regiment, the Third battery and the quick-firing guns to retire under cover of the Eleventh regiment.

"'My chief of staff led the rear guard to its position.

"'At one o'clock the Japanese approached so close to the position held by the Eleventh regiment that the 3d battery could not pass along under the cross-fire and, taking up a position a short distance from the Japanese, remained there until the end of the fight, losing its commander, Lieutenant Col. Moravsky.

"'A company of quick-firing guns was brought up from the rear, and the officers commanding this force, seeing the difficult situation of Moravsky's battery, took up the position on his own iniative. He lost half of his men and all his horses and attempted to recover his guns by hand to the shelter of the hills under the Japanese cross-fire. The quick-firing pieces discharged about 30,000 bullets.

"'The 12th regiment cut its way through and saved its colors.

"'The Second battery of the Sixth brigade, having attempted to rejoin the reserves by another route, could not ascend the mountain slopes with only half its horses, and retiring to its original position, received the Japanese attack.

"'The Eleventh regiment, which held its ground for two hours more, with heavy losses, forced a passage at the point of the bayonet and crossed the ravines with its colors. It lost its colonel commandant, forty officers and about 2,000 non-commissioned officers and men.

"'The Japanese losses must have been enormous.

"'The Russians retired in good order on Feng-Wang-Cheng.

"'The men of the Third division maintained their excellent morale and over 700 wounded proceeded with their regiments to Feng-Wang-Cheng.'"

FOR THE PUBLIC GOOD.

The Information Contained in this Citizen's Statement is Invaluable to Bellefonte people.

When a resident of Bellefonte whose statement appears below who has no monotary or other interest in the article which he endorses who is anxious to do his acquaintance and fellow residents a good turn who publishes in this paper his experience with Doan's Kidney Pills that citizen must have good and sufficient reason for doing so. The following should dispel any doubts which may have existed in the reader's mind on this subject;

William Valence 226 High street Night Watchman says: "For 2 years or more off and on I had trouble with my back adn pains in the upper part of my spine accompanied by a disagreeable feeling in my head and acute lameness right over my kidneys. At first I thought it was my liver but later found it arose from the kidneys not acting properly. I read of the many cures that had been made in Bellefonte by Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at F. Potts Green's drug store. They stopped the annoyance from the kidneys and removed the lameless and aching in my back. They did me any amount of good and I do not hesitate to recommend them.

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster—Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. sole agents for the United States.

A Relic of Daniel Boone.

Abs. Harter, of Millheim, has in his possession a block taken from a beech tree which has plainly cut on the bark the following:

D. BOONE,
1754.

The tree was cut in Georges valley this county, by Mr. Harter, who further stated that close by stood another tree with this inscription cut on it:

D. BOONE.
Jan. 2, 1754.
1 Deer, 1 Large Elk.

There is no doubt from the date of the inscriptions that they were made by the great hunter himself, as Abbott's Life of Boone states that at that time Daniel lived with his father in Northampton county and spent most of his time hunting. He would make long excursions into the central parts of Pennsylvania and stay for months at a time.

Boone must have been one of the pioneer discoverers of Penns Valley and it may have been his descriptions of the country that induced so many from Northampton county, shortly after the Revolutionary war, to emigrate to Penns Valley.

Mr. Harter takes great pride in this relic of the celebrated pioneer and values it very highly.

Fatal Accident at South Williamsport.

John Auer, Jr., an extra brakeman on one of the shifting crews working in the Pennsylvania railroad yards, South Williamsport, was fatally injured Wednesday morning while in the performance of his duties. He was squeezed between a shed and a car, being injured internally. The unfortunate man was hurried to the Williamsport hospital, but died in the afternoon. He was 24 years old and unmarried.

Rumors of Oil Strike Unconfirmed.

The rumor that oil had been struck in the second Gummo oil well in Bald Eagle township Clinton County at about the same depth that oil was found in the first well and while passing through the same sand created quite a stir among our citizens. Upon inquiry among some of the stockholders, it was learned that they had no knowledge of the fact that oil had been struck. However, drilling has ceased and the well is boarded up and the rumor given circulation that oil has been found but in what quantities is not stated.

—Lock Haven has at least one woman who knows her business when she sees it. The lady has the help of a girl in doing her house cleaning and a man made an attempt to persuade the girl to quit the job and go to his home to engage in the same business at higher wages, whereupon the woman turned the hose upon the intruder and gave him a good ducking. He didn't linger long after that and as he was leaving he muttered something about having the despoiler of his clothes arrested, but he probably will think over the matter very seriously before further exposing himself.

—Col. Edward R. Chambers has been re-appointed to his present position under the Auditor General. The new Auditor General took charge of his office on Tuesday and Mr. Chambers was immediately re-appointed. This is an excellent position, carrying with it a salary of over $2,000. Col. Chambers has made a capable and painstaking official and we congratulate him on his re-appointment.

—An old white hen, that escaped from a moving van on High street Tuesday morning and was chased into the creek by some boys, demonstrated that she could swim about as handily as any web-foot in the business. She sat on the water as gracefully as a swan and paddled her own canoe as complacently as Carrie Nation until a young gentleman stepped up to her and offered assistance in getting up over the wall.

Beaver has rented the vacant rooms in the Masonic Temple formerly occupied by Squire Gephart as a residence and moved his law office Thursday from his former quarters in Temple Court to these rooms. —Master Calvin Wetzel, grand-son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Gerberich of Bellefonte, met with a nasty accident last Saturday afternoon at his home in Philipsburg which might easily have been very serious. The little fellow was running a race with Rowland's automobile and fell, striking his head, and cut a deep zigzag gash in his forehead that it took six stitches to close. It is fortunate that the cut is likely to heal without marring the child's good looks, of which he has more than the ordinary share.

—A Missouri editor who is about to pull up and leave for the lack of support, sarcastically remarks in parting that editors don't need money: Don't worry about the editor. He has a charter from the state to act as doormat for the community. He'll get the paper out somehow, and stand up for you when you run for office, and lie about your pigeon-toed daughter's tacky wedding, and blow about your big-footed sons when they get a $4 a-week job, and weep over your shriveled soul when it is released from your grasping body, and smile at your wife's second marriage. He'll get along. The Lord only knows how—but the editor will get there somehow,

The choir is preparing some very excellent music, and will be assisted by Mr. Henry Brown Bellefonte's noted bass singer who will sing a solo entitled "Before the hills of God." The public is cordially invited to this services.

—The best record for regularity in school attendance for Huntingdon county, no doubt, is held by Edith Beck, of Warriorsmark township. For the past eight years she has attended school, being now 16 years of age, and in that time she has been present every day. Claire Beck, of the same family, is 12 years old, and for six years past has neither been absent nor tardy. These are records hard to be surpassed anywhere.

—Mrs. Fanny Brady died at her home in Patton on last Thursday, April 28th, aged about 37 years, and was buried at that place on Sunday following. She leaves to survive her, her husband and 6 children. She was a daughter of the late Dr. J. M. Blair, of Unionville, Centre County and was a most estimable lady, a member of the Presbyterian church, an affectionate wife and mother, and it is truly sad to think that one so young, whose life was so full of promise, should be cut down in the very prime of life. She also leaves to survive her besides her husband and children, her aged mother, Mrs. Susan Blair, Mrs. John C. Stere and Mrs. Maggie Holtzworth, all of Unionville, and Miss Anna Blair, of Florida.

—It is announced in the morning papers that a new troop of calvary for the National Guard of Pennsylvania will be organized at Newcastle on Wednesday of this week, and that Col. Frank K. Patterson, of Pittsburg, has been detailed to muster the new organization into service. It is stated that the organization will be mustered as Troop F, and have 54 officers and men. Three of the officers was commissioned by Governor Pennypacker. District Attorney Joseph V. Cunningham, who served as captain of Company B, of the sixteenth Pennsylvania, in the Spanish-American war, and later as captain of Company I, of the Forty-second United States volunteers, in the Philippines, will likely be chosen captain. The preliminaries for the organization of this troop began late in the winter, and it is probably the intention of the National Guard authorities at Harrisburg to form a regiment of cavalry of six troops, or later it may be determined to increase the cavalry force of the state to eight troops and form a regiment of two full 4-troop squadrons. There are now three troops in Philadelphia, one at Harrisburg and one at Tyrone, and the one at Newcastle will make six. In point of age the Sheridan Troop is second in number, the First Troop, of Philadelphia being first.

"G. B. M. Welliver, Lock Haven, Pa., application for removal of expulsion, date 1901, denied."

ROYAL
Baking Powder

Makes the food more wholesome, and more nutritious to both brain and muscle.

I have given the Training Table to the Cornell University for five years very satisfactorily, and am certain that much of the success has depended upon the quality of articles used. In baking powder, I use the Royal, for it is undoubtedly the best. I have occasionally given others a trial, and have demonstrated to my satisfaction that there is but one always reliable, always making perfect, delicious and wholesome food, — The Old Reliable "Royal."

(Mrs.) Amelia Morey Atkins.
